TOWSON & COCKEYSVILLE RAILWAY CAR BARN REMNANTS - 1912
- 305 Washington Avenue, Towson. The terminal buildings of the unsuccessful battery-powered interurban rail car line has been incorporated into the printing plant of the Jeffersonian Newspaper and is obscured on the west by a fieldstone and glass office front. The old structure that shows on the north was of brick but is now covered by stucco. Flat roofed; functional style.

Shown as "Station" in 1915 atlas and colored on map as brick. Tracks were dropped along with one "car" from the tax rolls in 1924.
